SPS Commerce Named to Food Logistics' 2017 FL100+ Top Software and Technology Providers List for 8th Consecutive Year

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 15, 2017 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) – SPS Commerce, Inc. (Nasdaq: SPSC), a leader in retail cloud services, has been named to Food Logistics' 2017 FL100+ Top Software and Technology Providers list. The annual list honors leading software and technology providers whose products and services are critical for global food and beverage companies. SPS has been named to the list since 2010.

"New developments and innovations in the software and technology sector are making sizeable impacts on the global food supply chain," said Lara L. Sowinski, editorial director for Food Logistics and its sister publication, Supply & Demand Chain Executive. "The result is a greater visibility, improved regulatory compliance, enhanced shelf life for perishables, and the emergence of a more proactive and nimble food supply chain that benefits both the food industry and its logistics partners, as well as the end consumer."

This digital era of retail requires new supply chain architecture: In the cloud, end-to-end visibility, EDI compliant and data-driven. SPS Commerce delivers it with solutions used by more than 70,000 retail and grocery organizations.

"Shoppers are putting tremendous pressure on grocery retailers and food brands to engage with and buy products in whatever means is convenient and comfortable for them," said Peter Zaballos, senior vice president and CMO at SPS Commerce. "This creates changing supply chain and technology imperatives for retailers, distributors and suppliers."

Companies on this year's 2017 FL100+ Top Software and Technology Providers list will be profiled in the November/December 2017 issue of Food Logistics, as well as online at www.foodlogistics.com.
