"We are delighted to welcome Jamie to the SPS executive team," said Archie Black, president and CEO of SPS Commerce. "He brings an impressive track record of growing technology platforms to support today's large scale social and commerce solutions. Jamie has a breadth and depth of technology expertise that makes him well suited for the transformational role of SPS Commerce in the retail marketplace. We look forward to having his innovative and technical leadership as an integral part of SPS Commerce."

Prior to joining SPS Commerce, Thingelstad served as CTO/COO at 8thBridge, a social commerce startup, and as CTO for the Wall Street Journal Digital Network, the Internet services division of Dow Jones & Company. In these roles, he was responsible for platforms that support millions of users across the world with 24x7 availability.
