NetSuite Users Choose SPS Commerce for Point of Sale Data Analyses

On-demand intelligence service delivers online access to e-commerce and store-level sales data from 120+ retailers for improved item management and forecasting

Minneapolis, Minn., April 21, 2011 - SPS Commerce (NASDAQ: SPSC), a leading provider of on-demand supply chain management solutions, today announced that its Trading Partner Intelligence Service (TPI) is being used by NetSuite users. These organizations are using the service to analyze their products' performance across dozens of retailers to identify online and store sales trends, anticipate orders, and assist in business and inventory plans. With TPI, NetSuite users can access their Point of Sale (POS) data online from more than 120 retailers.

"The Trading Partner Intelligence service offers the NetSuite community an easy and effective means to help sales executives monitor their sales by store or e-commerce site, retailer and item," said David Novak, Executive Vice President at SPS Commerce. "Trading Partner Intelligence provides insight and actionable analyses to improve fulfillment processes, reduce inventory and boost revenue. While many of our TPI customers also choose SPS Commerce as their EDI service provider, it is not required to leverage the TPI service."

SPS Commerce is a sponsor at NetSuite SuiteWorld 2011, NetSuite's annual user and partner event taking place in San Francisco on May 8-12, 2011. Visit SPS Commerce's booth to see its Trading Partner Intelligence service.
